Arteta trusted him, Aubameyang knew what the agreement was and to come back the following morning was totally unacceptable, Sutton said. If he's made a rule, Aubameyang breaks it and he doesn't come down hard on him, Arteta's got a massive problem on his

The reason Arsenal have lost their way recently is because they've had a couple of players out and have had bad days.

They very rarely fail and this guy looks like it's another [success]. Former Liverpool midfielder Jamie Redknapp was also impressed by Diaz's display at Wembley and believes he will thrive at Anfield.

Why is that? Is it because it's the easy thing to do. And he doesn't think he's got to put Van de Beek on because he's hardly played?

The fact we are now talking about Derby possibly signing new players, when just a few days ago the focus was on the club possibly disappearing after 138 years, shows just how much circumstances have changed.

Domestically, despite a defeat to Espanyol just days after the loss to Sheriff, Ancelotti's team dropped just two points in their next five games and currently find themselves on top of La Liga, a point clear of Real Sociedad having played a game fewer.

And yeah, it's tough for us, so we cannot deny it. So, we were so close to arriving at the Champions
League

It would have felt like an opportunity missed for Nathan Jones to really get his side in amongst the jostling positions for the play-offs.
